There is talk of getting up an immense torchlight procession.

Leave orders for roses, plants, fruit and ornamental trees at Perry's Pacific hotel block.

You will save money by buying what you want in the Drug line at Peeler's Drug Store, Corner 5th and Austin street.

Hear Harry Pepper sing Farewell Marguerite at The Garland to-night.

The Missouri Pacific train was about two hours late to-day on account of a wreck near Fort Worth.

The district court has been engaged all day on the case of Johnson against the Brazos Compress company for damages on account of personal injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Deane are happy over the advent of a junior photographer who tips the beam at ten pounds.

Marriage license have been issued to George W. Hurwood and Miss Lilian Darby, J. A. Wilkinson and Mrs. A. E. Hogg, T. C. Gable and Miss Ida Pippins.

The petition of Mrs. Emma Penry to have her name and that of her daughter Clara Bell, changed from Penry to Humphries, has been granted by Judge Williams.

In the mayor's court this morning Ella Miller was tried on a charge of renting a house to prostitutes and acquitted. Jim Micker was fined $10, and S. L. Oliver $5, for being drunk.

On Sunday evening last at the Morrow Street chapel, Mr. W. A. Trott was united in marriage to Miss Laura Byron, Rev. W. G. Connor officiating. The News extends its heartiest congratulations.

Saturday will be "Drummer's Day" at the Dallas fair, and all the missionaries of commerce around Waco are packing their grips and hunting up a new collar, preparatory to going up to participate in the festivities of the occasion.

The funeral services of the late Maj. Charles Moran, Jr., will take place at 5:30 this afternoon from the undertaking rooms of the Waco Furniture Company, Rev. Horace Bishop of the Methodist church officiating. Burial at Oakwood Cemetery.

A charming musical comedy is "Struck Gas" which will be presented at The Garland to-night. Tutein is a charming soubrette of excellent voice and rare qualities as an actress. Those whom music has power to charm should not fail to hear "Farewell Marguerite" as sung by Mr. Harry Pepper who is one of the finest tenors ever heard on the American stage.

Mayor Hinchman, this morning imparted to the City Marshal and police force instructions given him by the grand jury, directing that he call on the police to enforce the law on vagrancy, the law against gaming, against sundry law violations etc. The mayor duly complied with the instructions given him but could not refrain from wondering why, if the county attorney was so well informed as to violations of the law in the city, he did not prosecute the offenders in the justice court.

While working at the planing mill of A. J. Caruthers & Co., yesterday, D. F. Foster one of the employees got his hand caught in the machinery and seriously crushed. He was attended by Dr. O. I. Halbert who has hopes of saving the hand though it is probable the unfortunate victim will lose several fingers.

Matrimonial.

GWARTNEY-BARNARD.—Married at the residence of the bride's mother, at 2:30 this afternoon, Mr. Ernest L. Gwartney to Miss Hattie E. Barnard, daughter of the late George Barnard, Rev. Dr. R. C. Burleson officiating.

The ceremony above mentioned took place in the presence of a number of friends of both bride and groom and all unite in wishing them a life of happiness and joy. The groom is an estimable young man of sterling character, who lived for years in Waco where he is well known and much respected. He is at present living in Dallas to which place he will carry his bride.

Mrs. Gwartney, is a native of Waco and one of the brightest gems which shed a glorious lustre over our social circle. Possessed of all those charms and graces which go to make up perfect womanhood, she has won the respect and admiration of all with whom she has met. Mr. Gwartney is to be heartily congratulated upon the prize he has won.

After the wedding ceremony, the guests were invited to partake of a bountiful and sumptuous repast prepared in honor of the happy occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Gwartney will leave to-morrow morning for Dallas where they will reside.

The News extends its cordial and sincere congratulations.

Call For Precinct Convention.

In view of the fact that G. W. Brown the democratic nominee for county commissioner of precinct No. 1, of McLennan county, has withdrawn his name as such nominee, it becomes necessary that a nomination be made for said office. A convention is therefore called to meet in Waco on Saturday, October 27th, 1888, to nominate a candidate on the democratic ticket for commissioner of precinct No. 1. The democrats are requested to meet as early as practicable and select delegates from each voting precinct in said commissioner's precinct to this convention.

C. A. WESTBROOK, Chairman Democratic Executive Committee of McLennan County.

Capt. J. E. Elgin at Kerens.

The Dallas News of yesterday in its account of the grand rally at Kerens, the home of Marion Martin, on Saturday last, says of the speech of Capt. Elgin of this city:

Capt. Jack Elgin, of Waco was next introduced, and spoke nearly two hours in a masterly manner. He had not expected to speak, but was equal to the emergency. He told of Marion Martin's attempt to squander the land of the state while in the legislature and how Sul Ross had opposed and defeated such schemes. He told all about E. A. Jones' legislative career and his effort to subject poor tenants to the penitentiary if they should sell a bushel of potatoes without their landlords permission. Capt. E. A. Jones' remarks to the colored people in regard to the Blair bill and the present good system of education in Texas which is supported by a democratic administration and the Texas of democrats, were plain and practical and were carefully listened to by all.

THE FARMER FEEDETH ALL.

My lord rides through his palace gate,
My lady sweeps along in state,
The sage thinks long on many a thing
And the maiden muses on marriage;
The minstrel harpeth merrily,
The sailor plies the foaming sea,
The huntsman kills the good red deer
And the soldier wars without a fear,
But fall to each what'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Smith hammereth cheerily the sword,
Priest preacheth pure and holy word,
Dame Alice worketh bravely well,
Clerk Richard tales of love can tell,
The tap wife sells her foaming beer,
Dan Fisher fisheth in the river,
And courtiers ruffle, strut and shine,
While pages bring the Gascon wine,
But fall to each what'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.

Man builds his castles fair and high,
Whatever river runneth by,
Great cities rise in every land,
Great churches show the builder's hand,
Great arches, monuments and towers,
Fair palaces and pleasing bowers,
Great works are done, he's here and there,
And well man worketh everywhere,
But work or rest, what'er befall,
The farmer he must feed them all.
—Charles G. Leland.

A Woman's Description of Herself.

In the memoirs of Prince Adam Czartoyvski, just published, his wife, Princess Elizabeth, thus describes herself: "I was never handsome, but I have often been pretty, and I have beautiful eyes, and as all my feelings are reflected in them the expression on my face is always interesting. My complexion is white enough to be almost brilliant when I blush; a smooth forehead does not make my face ugly, and my nose completes the asymmetry of my features. My mouth is large, my teeth white, my smile amiable, and the shape of my face a graceful oval. I have enough hair to make an easy and becoming headpiece. My figure is elegant, my bust perhaps too thin, my hands ugly, but my feet are charming, and there is much grace in my movements. I have an extreme desire to please, and am skillful in showing both my physical and mental qualities to the best advantage. Though vain and ill tempered, I am endowed with such tact that I never do anything which does not give pleasure," etc.—Literary World.

Methods of the "Key Fitter."

A dangerous burglar is the key fitter, because from the very nature of his operations he is rarely ever discovered. He is not considered a first class man by the professional cracksmen because he is as much of a sneak as he is burglar. Wholesale jewelers, furriers, and other firms who frequently have their places of business in upper stories of houses are selected as victims. The key fitter usually operates in gangs of three. He will approach an employee of the firm to be victimized carrying a tin box or a valise and pretending to have an office in the same building. Politely he asks if the person approached has a key to fit the box or valise, he himself having lost the "open sesame." In nine cases out of ten a bunch of keys is produced, and while the key fitter pretends to try them his "stalls" or assistants come in and divert the attention of the employee or business man long enough to permit the man who had the box take as many impressions from the keys on the bunch as are considered necessary for the subsequent robbery. The impression is generally taken on a substance made from fresh beeswax, oil, and lampblack. From these impressions the expert key fitter readily makes the keys required. The balance of the operation is easy.—Chicago Times.

SUGAR AND MOLASSES.

The Part Filled by Sorghum Down South During the War.

At home and abroad sorghum came to take the place of the vanished sugar. The children at home ate it in their ginger cakes, and the soldiers in camp drank it in their rye coffee. The molasses and sugar of Louisiana were procurable in degree till the fall of Vicksburg; but the spirit of independence was rife, and each state desired and determined to rely as much as possible on its own products. The theory of state sovereignty was extended even to sorghum; and its introduction was hailed everywhere as one of the greatest boons of a beneficent Providence. The juice of the cane, extracted in a primitive fashion by crushing the stalks between wooden rollers revolving upon wooden cones and impelled by horse-and-little-darkey power, was caught in an ordinary trough, boiled down into proper consistency in preserving kettles, kitchen pots, or whatever might be utilized for the purpose, and barreled for use as sorghum molasses. The syrup thus produced was quite a palatable one, with a slightly acidulous and not disagreeable flavor, but with an unpleasant tendency to make the mouth sore. It was known as "long sweetening," in contradistinction to its predecessor, "short sweetening," the sugar that was scarce.

From its use in the place of sugar sorghum soon leaped into high repute as an almost universal food staple. It was warranted to cure any case of hunger in man or beast. Writers in the suggestive daily press undertook in elaborate and exhaustive essays to show that sorghum syrup was nearly as nutritious as meat and an exceedingly good substitute for it, while the seed of the sorghum cane was capable of being ground into a meal that made a most excellent and wholesome brown bread. They claimed that the problem of blockaded existence had been solved in the discovery of a plant which produced in itself meat and bread for the human family and provender for cattle. Yet the average denizen of the Confederacy, whether at home or in the army, while rendering due credit to the ingenuity and skill with which the cause of the "food staple" was advocated by its champions, appealed to the higher arbitrament of his own digestion; and though willing to accord sorghum its full merit as serviceable and useful in the place of something better, he was always ready to exchange it for the more certain and familiar nutriment of bacon and "corn pone." To see it fulfill the functions of sugar in the latest recipe for Confederate coffee and tea was well enough; but quietly to submit to its usurpation of the high places of pork and corn was more than the appetite of hungry rebeldom would endure.

There was a secondary use to which sorghum was put, in which it met with decided favor from a select few. This was its use in the manufacture of blacking. The manuscript recipe books of that day say that "wonderful shoe blacking, as good as Mason's best," can be made of sorghum molasses, pinewood soot, neat's foot oil and vinegar.

Yet, on the theory of the survival of the fittest, the average Confederate must have been right and the theoretic writers in the newspapers wrong about the value of sorghum, for bacon and corn bread have long since regained their wonted ascendancy in the south, and sorghum has vanished entirely from the fields where it once flourished, save, perhaps, where here and there some man and brother cultivates it yet in his little "truck patch," making "long sweetening" for the consumption of his family in as primitive a method as that in which he helped his quondam owner to make it "endure" of the war.

In the hardest times of the war period, when provisions were the scarcest, the latch to the larder of every southern housekeeper hung out to each southern soldier, no matter how ragged or humble. For him the best viands about the place were always prepared; and his was the high prerogative of receiving the last cup of real coffee, sweetened with the solitary remnant of sugar. With compassionate pity the women recognized the hardships in the army life of the Confederate soldier, and were always ungrudgingly ready to mitigate its severities in every possible manner.—A. C. Gordon in The Century.
